Hoop diaries: win or lose, Senn Cottage girls invited to play church-league basketball

Everyone should have the opportunity to play on a team. There's a lot to be learned through organized athletics: the importance of practice & hard work; breaking a rule of the game has unavoidable consequences; and perhaps most importantly, you're not just part of a team, you're part of a family.

This past year our girls in the Senn cottage were invited to play on a church-league basketball team hosted by one of our local congregations.

"We were thrilled to have the girls from the children's home play on our team," coach Will Hammond said. "We wanted the children's home girls to feel like part of our church family, not just be a part of our Sunday school and Wednesday night classes."

This is only the second year the Coyotes have fielded a team, and only the first year that we've had girls from the children's home interested in playing.

"Basketball served as a great way for the children's home girls to get closer to the rest of our church family," Coach Hammond said. "It's pretty common for girls from the children's home to be reserved and shy. Who can blame them? If I were put in a similar situation, I'd be reluctant too. But, on the court, everyone becomes a family."

Coaches Will Hammond and Ozzie Custodio with members of the Coyotes church basketball team

The girls didn't exactly light up the scoreboard when they first began playing with the team.

"We lost one game 3-2," Coach Hammond said. "Even though the girls had extensive experience shooting the basketball at home, they hadn't played organized basketball before. Let's just say there was a lot of raw talent."

Changes are upon us

Season of change includes new faces, significant accomplishments

It's hard to believe spring is upon us and summer is just around the corner. It seems as though time moves faster than ever. Change continues to be the only constant.

There have been several changes here at Southeastern in the past year.

First, we have several new, smiling faces as part of our Children's Home family.

Recently, we've added some new members to our staff at Southeastern Children's Home. We've welcomed two new sets of houseparents: the Caroon and the Davis families. We've also added two case managers: Alison Wofford and Matt Howland. Last year, our long-time receptionist Beverly Kelly retired, and we were blessed to have Wanda Martin begin working with us.

We also recently were granted admittance into the second phase of accreditation with the Council on Accreditation, a prestigious, independent organization that promotes excellence in child welfare and community-based services. This is a huge accomplishment. Hopefully this process will be completed in October of this year. This accreditation will verify that Southeastern Children's Home is an excellent facility for helping children and families.

teamwork is family fun

Perhaps the turning point of the season came when the Coyotes were in a closely contested game with a rival church team where points were scarce and fouls and jump-balls were commonplace.

"With our team down by two points, I watched Hailey block a much taller opponent's shot on one side of the court. Then, she collected the ball, quickly dribbled the ball up the court and she had the opportunity for a fast-break layup," Coach Ozzie Custodio said. "But she didn't lay it up for two points to tie the game. Rather, Hailey stopped at the three point line and drilled the shot from twenty feet away."

"... She realized the crowd was cheering for her. She realized we all wanted her to succeed. She realized she could do this. She realized she was part of a team. She realized she was part of our family ..."

The crowd went crazy. Everyone was on their feet yelling and cheering. Hailey was awestruck.

"The play, in and of itself, was remarkable. I was shocked. I jumped up for joy," Coach Ozzie Custodio said. "What was even more remarkable was that for the first time in probably her entire life, Hailey was just as shocked too. She realized the crowd was cheering for her. She realized we all wanted her to succeed. She realized she could do this. She realized she was part of a team. She realized she was part of our family."

The girls all enjoyed their experience with their first organized team sport.

"I just liked being taught new things," Hailey said. "The coaches were great. They would teach us techniques and help us discover what you can and can't do. I even learned how to shoot a three-pointer."

The coaches were all impressed with the development of the girls through the season.

"All of the girls scored at least once," Coach Hammond said. "That's a good feeling as coach, but points aren't the most important thing; family is."

Make a difference for years to come

Your tax-deductible gift gives needy children the experience of family

By Philip Murphy
Development Director

A few weeks ago, I helped my 10-year old daughter plant a garden. This is our third attempt at a family garden in our backyard. The first garden flooded. The second garden fell to the barrage of weeds and the ensuing accidental mowing from my oldest son. Still determined to harvest some crops, my persistent (some might say "stubborn") daughter planted her third garden in as many years.

Assuming this garden doesn't get flooded or mowed, these carrots will be the most expensive carrots I've ever bought. At this rate of success, I'm guessing my return on investment will be about $20 per carrot. Ordinarily, there's no way I'd pay that much for a vegetable.

Still, it's worth it.

After all, I'm not really investing in peppers and carrots. I'm investing in the experience. I'm creating a memory and a learning opportunity for my child.

Similarly, your gift to Southeastern Children's Home is more than just a mere gift of money. You're helping to plant seeds of life.

At Southeastern Children's Home, we want to give needy children the experience of family. We want to shower our children with love. We want to help our children grow into happy and healthy adults that will, one-day, pass the gift of family on to their children.

When you give a gift to SECH, you're giving a gift that will last beyond this year. You're part of an enormous support structure that will give abused and neglected children the ability to blossom.

If you haven't done so already, please consider giving a seed gift to the children's home this year. Let's continue to build amazing experiences for our children for years to come.

Congratulations!

Ronnie, one of the residents of the Smith Cottage, is baptized by new houseparent Steve Davis. Congratulations Ronnie!

Changes are upon us

While change can be a good thing, for many of our children, change can also be frightening.

It seems as though almost all of the children we currently serve have been with us for less than twelve months. Many of our children have been in seven or eight placements before they come to us. Often, our children have never experienced the normalcy of a family life.

Please continue to keep our children in your prayers. We continue to serve more and more children with severe emotional issues.

Change can be a great thing. We believe that our recent changes in our organization and the changes to our children will work together to serve a greater good.

"... While change can be a good thing, for many of our children, change can also be frightening ..."

Southeastern Children's Home Executive Director Robert Kimberly

Thank you for continuing your support of our ministry.

Sincerely,

Robert
