

A Christian approach to marriage, family, and individual counseling

Counseling Center

Southeastern Counseling Center offers marriage, family, and individual counseling in a biblical context.

Who is served by the counseling center

- Adolescent boys and girls
- Couples with marital challenges
- Individuals struggling with life challenges

How to make a counseling appointment

Counseling is scheduled by calling the Southeastern Children's home and Counseling Center office at: 864.439.0259

What to expect

- Confidentiality: Simply stated, what you talk about in counseling remains only known to you and your counselor. This creates the climate of trust necessary for a successful working relationship.
- Competence: All counselors are master's level with education and experience qualifying them to provide individual, marriage, and family counseling. Consultation and supervision are provided when needed.
- Compassion: The overall goal of the counseling center is to improve the quality of life of individuals, families, and the community. The compassion of Christ is the motivation for this ministry.

What counseling costs

A session fee is determined by a sliding scale based on annual income. Southeastern Counseling Center requires payment at the time services are rendered.

The counseling center accepts insurance reimbursement from a number of insurance companies. Please reach out to your carrier to confirm that we are on their approved list.

Where the counseling center is located

The counseling center is located on the beautiful SECH campus.
